11. ³ in the early days of the Silence era, before the turn of the XX century, "Scripts" for films in the United States were usually a synopsis of a film of about a pair and sometimes as short as a sentence. [1] Shortly after, As films grew in length and complexity, film scenes (also ©m called "treatments" or "synopses" [2]: 92) were written to provide narrative coherence that had been previously improvised. [1] Films as a journey Lua (1902) and The Great Train Roundy (1903) had scenes consisting, respectively, of a list of scene labels or scene labels with a detailed explanation of the scene in each scene. [1] At this time, scripts do not yet include individual photos or dialog. [1] These film scripts will evolve into continuity scripts, which listed a series of shots in each scene, providing continuity to optimize the movie process.
